The preferred online sources for research.

Capital High databases require the password bruins if you want to use them from home.

In-Text or Parenthetical Citations – found in the body of your paper to connect the reader to each source's entry on your Works Cited page. Page numbers are included only if your source has physical pages. Pay attention to the punctuation and formatting in the following examples:

If your source has an author, use the author's last name (Brown 14).

If your source has two authors, use both last names (Moss and Smith).

If your source has three authors, use each last name (Moss, Smith, and Jones).

If your source has more than three authors, use the first author's last name and et al.: (Moss, et al.).

If your author has provided more than one source, use the last name, a comma, and the first 2-3 words of each article's title in quotation marks: (Green, "Like Pale Gold") (Green, "Was Gatsby Great?")

If your source does not have an author, use the first 2-3 words in the article title in quotation marks ("Salute to Hollywood"). Do not use A, An, or The as the first word – use the next 2-3 words.

If you must use the title and another article has the same title, include the title of source too. The article title is in quotation marks with a comma inside and the title source is in italics.

("Benjamin Franklin," World Biographies) and ("Benjamin Franklin," Encyclopedia of Biography)

Publication Date – always use the most recent date

A book's publication date will be on its copyright page. Look for this symbol © followed by a year.

Website or databases have special formatting rules: day month year (22 May 2017)

All months are abbreviated using the first three letters except for May, June, and July.

Jan. Feb. Mar. Apr. Aug. Sep. Oct. Nov. Dec.

URL or Document Number

MLA 8 does ask for URLs

Use bitly.com to shorten a long URL (teacher preference)

Use a database's Document Number instead of its extremely long URL

Website Evaluation – a checklist to verify if a site on the internet is acceptable for academic purposes.

Wikipedia is not acceptable

Databases do not require this step

Capital High Library provides a website evaluation checklist

Works Cited Page – organized in alphabetical order with hanging indents. Do not number or bullet the entries!
